

1. There is always beauty in this world, but you have to look for it. Beauty can be in the darkness, in the tears on the side of the road, or even in unexpected places. It is everywhere, in every beauty that you photograph.

2. A smile from a stranger is a smile you should see. Some people may seem mean, but trust me, if you look closely, they have a hidden charm. Most importantly, they smile and don't just frown.

3. If you look up at the sky, you may get a good picture. Photography is a reminder to pay attention to the rising and setting of the sun. But there are times when the sky is beautiful when it shouldn't be and not beautiful when it should be. So look at the sky often. Even if the sky is not blue, the sky is still the sky. It never changes.

4. When you go to take pictures, don't just focus on creating works. Look around with your naked eyes. When you look with your naked eyes, you may not get pictures or works, but you will get memories to take home. Of course, some of your memories may fade with time. This is what makes memories beautiful in themselves.

5. Take photos for yourself. Taking proper photos requires being true to yourself. But your beauty doesn't have to be like anyone else's. Take photos that you like, just the way you are.

6. No matter how untechnique your photos are, there will definitely be people who like them. So, be brave and don't care too much about society because if you care too much about others, you will be the one who will not enjoy taking pictures.

7. Every time you press the shutter, you have to accept that there may be some good pictures and some bad pictures. But every time you press the shutter, that is your own accumulation of experience. Don't be sad that you don't take beautiful pictures. Because as long as you are not young enough to press the shutter, you still have the opportunity to get beautiful pictures to admire.

8. The world has many dimensions. Don't just choose to take pictures of flowers. You have to learn to take pictures of ruins of things. Because it helps you see the differences. Then you will see the truth that in the perfection that you see, there is something broken hidden. In the broken things that you see, there is also some beauty hidden.

9. Pictures of your loved ones. Family photos are the happiest photos you can take. But you have to let them be natural and take photos of them as they are. Whenever you try to make them be someone else, to make the photos look bad, but when you let them be themselves, their simple smile will make the photos you like the most.

(2024, August), Flower arrangement in a basket : Kitchen & Home : 19 (216) : 68-69

Baskets for storing things or fruits in the house can be modified to be decorated with flowers to make them look beautiful and chic. From being accustomed to arranging flowers in a vase for a long time, it would be good to change the atmosphere a bit. Because in addition to decorating the house beautifully, it can also be used as a gift for someone we love. And this month, there is an important day like Mother's Day. This idea is suitable for giving to your mother. The color theme will be white and cream. The flowers used are in many forms to make the bouquet have different shapes, beautiful in a unique way.

Using flowers in the same color tone, such as white or cream, should have a little green from the leaves mixed in. Boring helps to break up the white color and makes the bouquet more dimensional. Choose a basket with a head, which is more convenient for delivery because it is easy to hold and does not slip out of your hand. As for the beauty, it remains the same.
