Abstract

Presenting content about Featured in 2024's Photo Story of the World Over the past year, National Geographic photographers have traveled to far-flung corners of the globe to capture the wonders of our planet. Ancient inspirations, simple sculptures from the Greek island of Chlodzisz have inspired modern artists such as Pablo Picasso and Constantin Brancouz. Bring Knorr back to life in a remarkable restoration success story and rekindled a sense of sacredness. Proteomics: A revolutionary tool for archaeology. Researchers are using a new tool to study human skeletons and discover how it is changing our understanding of gender in ancient societies. Love-hate relationship between the rattlesnake and the iconic animal of the American West. The rattlesnake fell victim to a misunderstanding that could have killed it. How a piglet grew up to become a photographer's darling. Pink Flamingos, a wild flamingo lost a century ago, are making a comeback in the Sun State. A newcomer to the world of global studies visits a tiny research station in Norway's Arctic to meet the female scientists at the forefront of climate change research. How cats became excellent sailors Despite their notorious fear of water, cats have played a vital role on ships since the earliest days of sailing.
